POETRY.

THE GREENWOOD SHRIFT.

BY ROBERT AND CAROLINE SOUTHEY.

Outstretched beneath the leafy shade
Of Windsor Forest's deepest glade,
A dying woman lay;
Three little children round her stood,
And there went up from that greenwood
A woeful wail that day.

"O mother!" was the mingled cry;
"O mother, mother! do not die,
And leave us all alone."
"My blessed babes," she tried to say,
"But the faint accents died away
In a low, sobbing moan.

And then life struggled hard with death,
And fast and strong she drew her breath,
And up she raised her head;
And peering through the deep wood's maze
With a long, sharp, unearthly gaze,
"Will he not come?" she said.

Just then, the parting boughs between,
A little maid's light form was seen,
All breathless with her speed;
And following close, a man came on,
(A portly man to look upon),
Who led a panting steed.

"Mother!" the little maiden cried,
Or ere she reached the woman's side
And kissed her clay-cold cheek,
"I have not idled in the town,
But long went wandering up and down,
The minister to seek.

"They told me here—they told me there—
I think they mocked me everywhere;
And when I found his home,
And begged him on my bended knee,
To bring his book and come with me,
Mother he would not come.

"I told him how you dying lay,
And could not go in peace away
Without the minister;
I begged him for dear Christ, his sake;
But oh! my heart was fit to break—
Mother! he would not stir.

"So, though my tears were blinding me,
I ran back fast as fast could be,
To come again to you;
And here, close by, this squire I met,
Who asked, so mild, what made me fret;
And when I told him true,

"'I will go with you, child,' he said,
'God sends me to this dying bed;'—
Mother he's here hard by."
While thus the little maiden spoke,
The man, his back against an oak,
Looked on with glistening eye.

The bridle on his neck flung free;
With quivering flank and trembling knee,
Pressed close his bonny bay;
A statelier man, a statelier steed,
Paced never greensward glade, I rede,
Than those stood there that day.

So, while the little maiden spoke,
The man, his back against an oak,
Looked on with glistening eye
And folded arms, and in his look
Something that, like a sermon-book,
Preached "all is vanity."

But, when the dying woman's face
Turned toward him with a wistful gaze,
He stepped to where she lay,
And kneeling down, bent over her,
Saying, "I am a minister—
My sister, let us pray."

And well withouten book or stole
(God's words were printed on his soul),
Into the dying ear
He breathed as 'twere an angel's strain,
The things that unto life pertain
And death's dark shadows clear.

He spoke of sinners lost estate
In Christ renewed, regenerate;
Of God's most blessed decree,
That not a single soul should die,
Who turns repentant with the cry,
"Be merciful to me."

He spoke of trouble, pain, and toil,
Endured but for a little while
In patience, faith, and love,
Sure, in God's own good time, to be Exchanged for an eternity
Of happiness above.

Then, as the spirit ebbed away,
He raised his hands and eyes to pray
That peaceful it might pass;
And then the orphan's sobs alone
Were heard as they knelt, every one,
Close round on the green grass.

Such was the sight their wondering eyes
Beheld, in heart-struck, mute surprise,
When reined their coursers back,
Just as they found the long astray,
Who, in the heat of chase that day,
Had wandered from their track.

Back each man reined his pacing steed,
And lighting down, as if agreed,
In silence, at his side;
And there, uncovered all, they stood:
It was a wholesome sight and good,
That day, for mortal pride.

For of the noblest of the land
Was that deep-hushed, bareheaded band,
And central in the ring,
By that dead pauper on the ground,
Her ragged orphans clinging round,
KNELT THEIR ANOINTED KING.

CAROLINA TIMES.

E. P. WARING, Editor.

CHARLOTTE.

Monday, August 30, 1869

The New Bern Times is becoming really spicy, and exhibits considerable energy and ability in its conduct. We are with it fully in its efforts to carry out the great Southern idea of consolidation, but not fully with it in all its notions of immigration. We are for immigration, and have been for the last fifteen years, but that don't follow that we will welcome everybody who chooses to come, without regard to the motives which bring them. This is a [illegible] and from certain standpoints very interesting. The Southerner inheriting from their English ancestry a love for "broad acres" have always lived in sparsely settled neighborhoods, which has given to them an independence of character which has made them distinguished [illegible] field of intellectual pursuit, particularly that of governing or commanding. We do not know that it is very desirable to cut up these large farms, in order to have them settled up by persons, who are foreign to our ideas of thought and habits of life. Occasionally, a northern farmer will do, but small farms are not the thing for the South. With all the boasted civilization of the North unprejudiced men of refinement and culture will prefer that of the South, as they will admit that our society is purer and better than that of the more thickly settled regions where isms flourish. What we need from the North and Europe are not politicians, instructors, preachers, or indeed any of that class, but skilled mechanics, industrious and energetic men of affairs, and to that class a cordial welcome has been, and will be held out. We want our lands for our native population and Chinese to work them, and Northerners to build factories and machine shops, &c.

We see from the Raleigh Standard that the first bale of new cotton was brought to market on Friday, it was classed middling and was sold at 84c.

Pretty good for Raleigh.

John Chinaman.

Having read with much interest the various articles in your paper relative to the efficiency of the celestials, as laborers, and their value as citizens, I offer you the result of my experience with them, and observations upon their habits, education, etc.

During the years 1847-48, I had two hundred and fifty Chinese laborers in my employ on a sugar plantation in the island of Cuba. They came from the port of Amoy, under a contract to work eight years at four dollars per month, payable annually. On the same plantation were 930 native Africans and 300 negroes, natives of the United States. The Chinese were remarkably docile, industrious and intelligent; all could read and write their language fluently, and from their peculiar tact and dexterity would perform about double the amount of the labor of the negroes, and with much less apparent effort. Whatever they undertook their work is to be done, they require but little overseeing. They are all botanists to the extent of knowing many of the native products of vegetation to cook in their savory dishes. They will push up the coconut palm trees and pick the leaves from forest trees for [illegible]. Their rations were jerked beef and corn meal, but they [illegible] of less vegetable [illegible] from the fields and forests, and [illegible] the art of making the most of everything better than any people I have [illegible].

My experience with them lasted [illegible] three years, and I found that one Chinaman was worth at least two negroes for any kind of labor. In 1850 I returned to the island of Cuba, when some of my friends were paying a premium of $760 per head for Chinese labor contracts, besides paying them their wages, proving in the most positive manner, that after ten years' experience they were valued at more than double the price of negroes, who were not worth $1000 for the term of their natural life.

The most of the Islands bordering the "Straits of Malacca," as well as the "Spice Group," are largely cultivated in sugar cane, by English and Spanish proprietors, who contract with a Boss Chinaman to make the crop and take it off for a stipulated price per pound for the sugar weighed from the coolers.

The proprietor furnishes the land (a portion of which may be dense jungle to be cleared) and the sugar house, the contractor furnishing all work, animals and implements, and the proprietor advancing a portion of the payment as the crop progresses, if required, but the contractors are generally men of sufficient means to make the crop without any payment until it is finished.

The route from the ports of China to the Mississippi river, is now so quick and complete that we are almost certain within five years to see the cotton and cane fields and factories of the South, and factories of New England fully supplied with "Celestial" labor, working on the contract system of the East Indies, above referred to. The Celestials are generally prudent, saving their wages for a capital to start or, as soon as they save sufficient, aspiring to a farm or some trade of their own—which is the character of labor that we want to secure the growing stability of our agricultural interest, which is the basis of all others.

One immigrant who by his manual labor becomes a landed proprietor, however small, is worth much more to the community and State than one who never aspires above daily wages. Among the Chinese will of course be found the vicious and debased as among ourselves; but that the moral and political sense of the nation at large, is at least as near correct as any modern civilization, is sufficiently proved by the simple fact that its three hundred millions possess the elements of existence as a nation for thousands of years back out of date of history, with its masses educated better and more generally than any other nation on the globe.

This system and vigor of government have certainly never been acquired by any modern civilization, and while we are hiring their laborers for our fields, perhaps some of their statesmen will come over and show our Congress how it is done.

Their code of morals which so troubles our New England Puritan friends, will afford them a rich field for missionary effort without sending to Africa, and they may acquire some special legislation to bring the moral ideas of the Celestial down to the Puritanical standard; but with their intelligence, industry, ambition, and prudence let us welcome all that will come, and take the chances. The strong contrast of their customs and moral ideas may result in improvement to both races.

Much might be said about their chemistry, applied to the arts, medicine, etc., in many respects far in advance of any knowledge that we possess—but enough for the present.

S. H. GILMAN.

We learn that at a meeting of the stockholders of the Eastern Division of the Western Extension of the North Carolina Railroad, held on the 26th, Gov. Tod R. Caldwell, appointed by the Governor, was accepted by the stockholders as the proper State proxy. We have not heard the names of the newly elected stockholders, but learn that Ex-Governor Vance and Judge Merrimon were excluded from the board. We also learn that Col. Harris, though he had with the Governor given his proxy to Gov. Caldwell, was present on the occasion, but received no encouragement from a majority of the private stockholders to take part in the proceedings. Query: Is Gov. Holden a good, or a doubtful Republican, under whose auspices such a man as Vance is excluded from office? Good Republicans are not in the habit of favoring men like Vance.

Standard.

GROWTH OF NEW YORK CITY.—A New York journal has the following:

"No other single fact demonstrates so palpably the very rapid growth of our city as the one stated in connection with the ceremony of breaking ground for the new post office. The first shovelful of earth was by the man who formerly carried our whole Southern mail in a wheelbarrow, and took it over the river in a rowboat. During one man's life, that wheelbarrow load has grown so that half a dozen locomotives are necessary to move it."

It is estimated that at least 50,000 Americans are now travelling in Europe for amusement and instruction. News from every direction show that the spell of cold weather about the beginning of August, was general throughout the country. Frost was seen near Whiteside mountain in the South West of North Carolina. Apprehension is felt that the corn and tobacco crop in some parts of Virginia will be cut short by the drought. The Correspondent of the Religious Herald, Savannah, says: We ought to be very grateful for the general good health of the city and the State, and for the promise of excellent crops. The indication of an abundance of grain and cotton have not been better for ten years than now.

Molly Kelly, aged 108 years, resides in Harrison county, Kentucky, was born in West Virginia, but has resided in Kentucky for 76 years, and has 95 grand-children; is in good health, save she is blind from age.

MR. DAVIS.—Postmaster-General Reagan, of the late Confederacy, in a letter to the Galveston News, vindicates Mr. Davis from some accusations made against him by Judge Evans, of Texas. They charged him with embezzlement of his money bags, and with a scheme for a Western Empire beyond the Mississippi. Mr. Reagan completely answers them all and vindicates Mr. Davis. They were together in the journey from Richmond, and continued together for a long way. The first idea of Davis was to effect a junction between Lee and Johnston, and thus make a stand. But failing in that, and hearing of the surrender of first Lee and then Johnston, Mr. Davis and his advisors determined to cross the Mississippi and if possible to continue the struggle there, only with the same views that governed him in Richmond. But the treasure still held by the Confederacy he left entirely in charge of others, and, showing entire self-denial, moved in advance. Mr. Reagan makes the following statement:

"In coming through South Carolina, he and myself, riding ahead of our company, passed a cabin on the roadside, when he asked a woman, who was standing in the door for a drink of water. On handing it to him she said, 'Are you President Davis?' On his replying in the affirmative, she said to him, pointing to a little boy barely large enough to walk a little, 'That is your name sake; we call him Jeff. Davis.' He took from his pocket a gold coin, apparently the size of a three-dollar piece or sovereign, and handing it to her, told her to give it to the little boy, saying to me, as he rode off, that was his last piece of coin, which he had kept as a sort of keep-sake on account of its being a coin seldom seen in this country.

"Subsequently, when in company with several members of his Cabinet, the subject of their finances was mentioned and their poverty was made, among themselves, the subject of passing amusement, Mr. Davis took out his pocketbook and counted, I think, about two hundred and seventy dollars in Confederate Treasury notes, then almost entirely worthless, and said, laughingly, that was his fortune in money. He then added that it was a source of gratification rather than of regret that himself and nearly all the members of his Cabinet had sacrificed their private fortunes in the struggle for the liberty of the people. I will also add, that when it was determined after the surrender of General Johnston, to transfer the field of military operations to the west of the Mississippi one of his Cabinet told Mr. Davis that he had money enough to take them both across that river.

"These facts are given to show the injustice which has been done to one whose hopes and thoughts and energies were all wholly devoted to the cause, then so dear to us, in which he was engaged; and who, amidst his all engrossing public duties and responsibilities, took no thought of his private fortune or of his personal safety.

"I am persuaded that the wise and good and honorable, even among those who thought him wrong in his support of the cause of Southern independence, and imperilled their lives in opposing him on the battle-field, will accord to him sincerity of convictions as the rightousness of the cause in which he was engaged, integrity of purpose, and those great qualities of head and heart which fitted him to be the leader of a heroic people in a great struggle.

"I know the time has not yet fully come for explanations like this to be received without offence to the prejudices of many good people, who have only viewed Mr. Davis of late years as a public enemy. But I trust now, since that cause has been forever abandoned, the generous and just will see that I but perform a duty to one who, while he is in a distant land, is yet very dear to me and to millions of others in the United States.

Very respectfully,
JOHN H. REAGAN.

The Corpus Christi Advertiser says that the wool crop of extreme western Texas is fast swelling to huge proportions. As the rate wool growing increases, it will soon rival the cotton crop of the east. The outlet of this wool is directly through Corpus Christi. The Advertiser says "we have yet millions upon millions of acres to be appropriated to the production of the fleecy staple. The time is not distant when, as in times past, long past, there will be seen one continuous flock of sheep from Casa Blanca to Laredo, a distance of one hundred and twenty-five miles."

The corn crops of New Hanover and Brunswick counties have been injured by the recent rains.

They talk of lighting the city of Newbern with kerosene oil; proposals are advertised for.

Mr. Henry Kingsley is about to assume the editor-ship of the Daily Review, a leading Liberal newspaper in Edinburg.

Corn and cotton in Tennessee are badly damaged by the unfavorable weather.

A dispatch from Memphis says that the cotton prospects are less favorable. It is calculated that the yield in this vicinity will not be larger than the crop of last year.

A Thrilling Narrative.

From the Mich. Eagle.

* * * To make it an intelligible matter to the reader, let me say that the Buffalo, Corry and Pittsburg road intersects the Lake Shore at this place. The station at the road is called Brocton. Now, let it be understood that from this point to Mayville, at the head of Cantauqua Lake, a distance of only about ten miles, a train is carried over an elevation of 700 feet. From the station to the grade is about eighty feet to the mile, with curves which increase the distance by four miles. It is over this road that the immense quantities of petroleum are brought.

On Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock a train consisting of six oil cars and two passenger cars reached the summit on its way to the Junction. Here, by some cause as yet unexplained, one of the oil tanks took fire. The passenger cars were at once detached, and the brakes stopped them.

Next the oil cars were cut off, and the locomotive, tender, and a box car, containing two valuable horses and two men, passed down the road, the engineer supposing that the brakemen on the oil cars would arrest the course of those; but what was his horror on looking back to see the six cars in pursuit of him down the grade, enveloped in flames. They not only pursued, but overtook him, striking the box car with inconceivable force, knocking the horses and men flat upon the floor, and yet, almost miraculously, not throwing the engine from the track.

It was now with the engineer a race for life, and he gave the engine every ounce of steam. Looking south from the place of my residence at that terrible juncture, one of the most magnificent spectacles was witnessed that a man sees in a lifetime. A sheet of intensely bright flame, sixty feet high, was seen coming down the southern slope apparently with the speed of a meteor, and really very nearly the speed of a hurricane (eighty miles an hour), for pursued and pursuer flew over the course, or rather down it, and around the curves, at the rate of more than seventy miles an hour, as the engineer declares, and as everybody can believe who witnessed the spectacle.

The whole heavens were illuminated and the landscape was lit up as by the noonday light. Onward and downward flew the engine, and behind it flew and thundered the huge fiery demon. Twice its prodigious weight was driven against the fugitive as if instinct with a purpose to drive it from the track. It seemed as if to the heroic engineer and fireman there was a perfect environment of peril. The speed of the engine was such that it ceased to pump; then, again, the Cincinnati express was due at the Junction at this time. The engineer of the oil train whistled "open switch," and shaking hands with the fireman, they bade each other farewell, knowing that their lives depended on the opening of the Lake Shore switch by their friends below; and this was to imperil the express train coming down from the West with its living human freight. The engineer on this train saw the fire when it first broke out at the summit, and, supposing he could clear the Junction before the flaming terror reached it, he, too, put his engine to the utmost speed on a level grade.

A mile short of the Junction, he saw that the effort was a vain one, for the flying conflagration had rushed out upon the Lake Shore track, and was roaring onward in the direction of Dunkirk. He checked the onward course of his own train, and brought it to a stand-still. It did not proceed till 3 o'clock in the morning.

The case took to another danger, and it was imminent. A heavy freight train was coming up the Lake Shore road. All I will say of this escape is that it did escape to the side track, and only escaped by the last minute of possibility.

Running on to a safe distance from the depot, the engineer of the oil train detached his engine, and left the six cars to consume. He says his situation was fully realized by him. He expected to lose his life. At every moment he expected the engine to leave the track. He saw that he was going at a perilous rate of speed, but there was no help for it.

The demon was behind him, and he declares that it looked like a demon. With that fondness or real affection for his engine which these men display, he said "I thought everything of my engine, and was determined to stay by it to the last." The fireman made one attempt to escape by jumping from the tender, but the engineer restrained him. Altogether, the occurrence was a remarkable one, and in part remarkable for this, that no lives were lost. The brakemen on the oil cars had gone back to the passenger cars when the oil cars started. It was well they did. Unless those rear cars had been detached and stopped their inmates would have been buried to death.

The secular papers last week, announced that a sermon would be preached on the coming Sunday, on the subject—"The Fast Young Man." Such announcements are becoming too common. For the sake of decency we hope our ministers will not lend their sanction to this new mode of degrading the pulpit and bringing those who should be its protectors into contempt.

The disturbed condition of the country, led many persons to regard the disruption of the republic of Mexico as imminent.

BLASPHEMOUS.—At a spiritualist camp-meeting, held in Harwich, Mass., one of their speakers declared that the blood of Christ was of no more account than that of Cock Robin. In the land of the Puritans large numbers are attracted by the utterances of these deluded enthusiasts, and listen complacently to blasphemies which ought to chill the blood.

Father Hyacinth the famous priest and orator of Paris, says: "there are three religions in the world, the Jewish, the Catholic, and the Protestant, and all three are equal in the sight of God." There are five thousand priests and ecclesiastics of various orders in Naples, who are of no earthly use to any body. They teach nobody, they produce nothing, they live upon the ignorance and superstition of the people.

VISIONS OF A SWEDENBORGIAN.—A Swedenborgian named Parker is attracting some notice in Toronto by the relation of his curious spiritual experiences. He declares that he was taken up into heaven, which is divided into zones like the earth. The frigid zone is peopled with Unitarians, who wear lions' skins on their heads, tigers' skins on their bodies, and bears' skins on their feet, and ride in chariots of ice, drawn by horses without any tails.

The Chicago Post says: An old lady in this city on reading yesterday the statement that the ice-house at Crystal Lake had been burned, with its contents, remarked, "La, now, I suppose it was from spontaneous combustion. I often noticed that the ice in the wagon smoked."

The quantity of guano imported into the United States (except from American islands,) for the eleven months ending May 31, 1869, was 168,960 tons; for same time 1867-8, 1,127,684 tons.

About eight years ago a New York merchant accepted a deed of a plot of ground in the vicinity of Chicago for an old debt. The plot was then valued at eight hundred dollars. He has recently sold one-half of the plot for ninety thousand dollars.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A book by General Lee will awaken such special interest, that we are glad to call attention to it. The UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY of No. 4 Bond Street, New York, announce that they have now in press, and will issue in a few weeks, "Memoirs of the War," by Gen. Henry Lee, thoroughly revised and corrected by Gen. R. E. Lee who has added, also, an entirely new biography of his father, prepared by him from private and personal materials never before used. It will be a large and handsome octavo volume, illustrated by new steel portraits of Gen. Henry Lee and Gen. Nathaniel Greene; beautiful steel engravings of "Marion Crossing the Pedee," and the "Surrender of Cornwallis," and five original maps and plans. Our readers need not be told that this is a work of great interest and value. It is the standard history of military operations at the South during the revolutionary war, and as such is a book which every reading man should possess; but its interest and value are both greatly increased by Gen. Robert E. Lee's thorough revision and correction, and by the valuable biography of his father which he has written and added to it.

We are sure that this announcement, alone, is sufficient to give the book a very great sale, but when we add that Gen. Lee is personally interested in its publication, such a sale is made certain.

As we learn that the book is to be sold by canvassing agents only, those who desire to engage in its sale should make early application to the publishers.

Painless Digestion.

"No man," says Sir Astley Cooper "ought to know by his sensations that he has a stomach." In other words, when digestion is perfect there is neither pain nor uneasiness in the region where it takes place. Nausea, want of appetite, flatulency, oppression after eating, shooting pains in the epigastrium, a flushing of the face at meal times, and a furred tongue in the morning, are among the direct symptoms of indigestion. Constipation, biliousness, headache, nervous irritability, physical weakness, and low spirits, are its almost invariable accompaniments. All these indications of weakness, whether immediate or secondary, are usually aggravated by hot weather.

The close of summer is therefore the season when the victim of dyspepsia most urgently needs a tonic and regulating medicine. Of course, every invalid has many advisers. One friend recommends one drug, another another; but in a multitude of counsellors there is not always safety. THE STANDARD REMEDY OF THE PRESENT AGE FOR INDIGESTION, in all its stages, is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. Time, that proves all things, has established its reputation on an impregnable foundation—the spontaneous testimony of millions of intelligent witnesses. No acid or oil or acrid defiles its salutary principle; its tonic constituents are the finest that botanical research has yet discovered; it combines the properties of a gentle evacuant, a blood depurent, and an anti-bilious medicine, with invigorating qualities of the highest order, and is admitted both by the public and the profession to be the surest protection against all diseases that are produced or propagated by poisonous air or unwholesome water, that has ever been used either in the United States or Tropical America.

In cases of constipation resulting from a want of muscular tone in the intestines, the effect of the BITTERS is perfectly marvellous; and without the dangerous sequences of mercury, it restores the disordered liver to a normal condition.

Valuable Real Estate for sale, lease or rent—By Crouly & Morris.

Oates, Walter Brem & Co's

We received a few days since a prospectus of Bannester, Cowan & Co, Real Estate and Financial Agents, Wilmington, N. C, together with a very characteristic letter in which they say "you will oblige us by scanning closely and noticing it favorably or unfavorably." A free notice is all that is wanted. A shrewd business trick but rather sharp practice for North Carolina gentlemen. So much for the letter. We have scanned the book closely and are compelled to notice it favorably. We do not know where we could find so much valuable information compressed in so small a space, and that too so succinctly, clearly, and accurately stated. It is a book that will make North Carolinians proud of their State, and by calling the attention of capitalists to her varied and unlimited resources, do much to induce investments here. A firm able to get up such a "prospectus" as this, must have vast facilities to effect sales. While working for themselves they are doing an immense amount of good to the State. So we wish them God speed.

Armstrong, Cator & Co., Dealers in Ribbons, Millinery, and Straw Goods, Baltimore, Md. We welcome this old and popular Firm back to our columns with pleasure, they have always been great favorites in this State, and this season are prepared to sustain their well earned reputation. All orders will be promptly filled on as good terms as if the purchase was made personally in Baltimore.

Messrs. Gail & Ax, dealers in snuff and fine cut tobacco. Most of the leading firms of this city keep Gail & Ax's snuff which we are told sells rapidly and gives universal satisfaction.

A correspondent of the Kansas City Times says that Mr. Henry Smith, Radical Superintendent of Public Schools for Johnson county, Mo., has adopted a negro girl, who bears the relation of a daughter in his family. His own daughters are made to call her sister, and he leads the little dusky maiden about the streets and to church, devoting to her the same care and attention that is bestowed upon his own children.

A London paper says: "Mr. Tennyson has returned from Switzerland, utterly disgusted with his trip. Wherever he went, he was mobbed by other tourists. If he put his head out of his bed room door, he found a number of girls hovering about in the passage, waiting for a glimpse of the author of 'The May Queen.' On one occasion, one of the gentlemen of Mr. Tennyson's party found his hat gone, and another substituted for it. He made a great hue and cry, and discovered that the missing article had been taken in the belief that it had covered the brows of the Laureate."

MONEY
is an article despised by none, and we are now prepared to show how all may possess it in abundance, by following a few simple instructions, which will be given of charge, except the trifling sum of 25 cents, as a guarantee of good faith.
The business is inexhaustible, and thousands are now engaged in it; while to their most intimate friends the cause of their great success and prosperity remains a mystery. Any party engaging will frequently receive sealed packages by express or mail, and further than this the business is all to yourself.
AS
the article can be carried in the vest pocket, except when wanted for use. It needs your attention but one or two days in the week, or a couple of hours daily, which can be after other business is over. No additional cost, taxes, or help of any kind; all engaging with us must be of first WATER.
NO OLD MAIDS NOR MINISTERS WANTED, but one good smart man in every town who can keep his business to himself, act confidently with us, and can make from $5 to $10 for every hour's service. Act promptly, strike while you have the opportunity, and a FORTUNE is yours. Inclose, with your address, one prepaid directed envelope and 25 cents, and you will receive full particulars by return mail. Address, NOYES & CO., 68 Wall street, N. Y.

NOTICE.
We hereby notify the public that, from and after this date, we employ no agents for the sale of Gregory's Dyspeptic Mixture,
Neither are there any interested parties with us. We are the inventors, sole proprietors, and only manufacturers of the genuine article, and our individual signatures accompany each bottle, and all orders and remittances must be made to Drs. W. W. & R. K. GREGORY, at Charlotte, N. C.
In assuming the entire charge of this invaluable remedy, we present it to you in a new dress, and have reduced the price to $1.00 per bottle, to bring it within the reach of all. In the pamphlet which accompanies each bottle will be seen the certificates of the most distinguished physicians, judges and divines, in the State, and we only ask for it a trial, that dyspepsia may be convinced of its curative virtues.
A liberal discount to the trade.

S. B. SEXTON'S CELEBRATED

PATENT BALTIMORE PARLOR HEATERS

AND GAS BURNERS,

for Anthracite or Bituminous coal, have been in successful operation for the last ten years, and have proved to be the best Fire-place Heaters manufactured and put in operation. They are getting to be generally used, often in the place of furnaces, for heating Chambers and upper rooms in dwellings and offices. Two or three Stoves heating the largest dwellings, and besides, are quite ORNAMENTAL and ILLUMINATING, having all the beauty and cheerfulness of an open grate fire, but are more ECONOMICAL, CLEANLY, and RADIATING A LARGER AMOUNT OF HEAT. We can refer to thousands of families who have them in use.

We manufacture our own COOKING STOVES and we guarantee them to be equal to any sold for baking and cooking. We have stoves to take in long wood and with large ovens, and are superior Stoves for baking. We are getting out some new patterns of Cooking Stoves, that will burn Bituminous coal, hard coal, or wood. They will have a beautiful finish, and will stand among the best Cook Stoves. Our Cooking Stoves are Baltimore made, and we guarantee the plates. Our Cooking Ranges are pronounced the best and cheapest in the market. Baking of all kinds can be done in our Ranges as quickly and equally as well as in a Brick oven. We will manufacture S. B. SEXTON'S new patent Hot Air Furnaces, warranted to burn from 30 to 40 hours with once filling.

Thankful to our friends and the public for their past favors, we solicit a continuance of their patronage.
